

GHX Fact Sheet: Company Information

Company Overview:	GHX provides software and services to enable healthcare organizations to reduce costs, become more efficient, make better business decisions and deliver better patient care. Created and owned by members of the healthcare industry, GHX connects suppliers, distributors, providers and group purchasing organizations in North America and Europe through an open and neutral electronic trading exchange. GHX also plays a unique role in creating a collaborative community through which the industry can address common issues and opportunities for improvement.
Founded:	March 29, 2000, by GE, Johnson & Johnson, Abbott, Baxter and Medtronic
Business Areas:	GHX's primary product and service offerings revolve around: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• supply chain, accounts payable and sales force automation• content and contract management• business intelligence• standards enablement and data synchronization
Mission:	GHX maximizes automation, efficiency and accuracy, resulting in better patient care and billions of dollars in savings for the healthcare community.
Healthcare Supply Chain Savings Enabled by GHX:	GHX and its customers have cut $1.3 billion in costs from the healthcare supply chain over the past four years through exchange connectivity alone and GHX is targeting an additional $5 billion by 2015.
Ownership:	GHX is now owned by 20 equity representatives of the entire healthcare supply chain, including manufacturers, distributors, providers and group purchasing organizations, with no owner owning more than 15 percent.
